Games With Stegilsaurus

Privacy Policy

Effective November 24, 2026

Matthew James Stegall, doing business as Games With Stegilsaurus, handles the personal information described here. This policy covers our websites, player portal, bookings, hosted tabletop games, support, and the community spaces we manage. It describes information we receive when you use an available feature or contact us. Questions and privacy requests can go to Stegilsaurus@gmail.com.

1. What we collect and why

You can browse public listings without creating a player profile. A booking, payment, or community feature may need the information described below.

When you use the Services	Information we handle	How we use it
Visit or sign in	Our hosting and sign-in providers may process request times, IP address, browser and device details, sign-in and security events, and similar technical information. We receive an account identifier and a verified email address, and may receive a display name depending on how you sign in.	Deliver pages, maintain sessions, verify sign-in, protect accounts, detect abuse, and troubleshoot.
Set up a player profile	A display name you choose, account identifier, contact details you provide, age eligibility confirmation if requested, and any optional avatar, bio, pronouns, time zone, preferences, or character details you add.	Maintain your profile, identify you on the roster, help you join games, and apply your choices.
Reserve, waitlist, play, or cancel	Campaign, seat, waitlist position or status, session time, reservation and cancellation times, attendance, confirmed price, and related communications.	Allocate seats, coordinate players and hosts, send confirmations or schedule changes, and apply booking and billing rules.
Pay or receive a refund	Billing contact and any tax details needed, price and currency, authorization records, processor references, payment and refund status, card brand, last four digits, and expiration date if provided by the processor, and billing dispute records.	Process and reconcile charges, verify payment, issue receipts and refunds, prevent fraud, and keep tax and accounting records.
Share campaign material or leave a review	The character sheets, backstories, messages, files, ratings, or reviews you choose to share and the name displayed with them. We may receive game activity or communications we need to run a session from the tools you use to play.	Run and document the game, show material to the audience you select, and moderate the community.

When you use the Services	Information we handle	How we use it
Contact us or report a concern	Contact details, what you tell us, relevant account or booking details, and evidence you choose to send. We may receive related details from another participant, a host, or a platform.	Answer questions, investigate safety and security issues, resolve disputes, and enforce table rules.
Offer private table preferences or request an adjustment	If offered, the topics you prefer to include or avoid, participation adjustments you request, and how you prefer to flag a concern.	Set boundaries and adapt the game. We use the details only as needed to run or safeguard the table.

We receive information from you, from your use of our Services, and from providers that handle sign-in, payments, hosting, delivery of messages, or gameplay. If you contact us through an external platform, we may receive your account name and the material you share. Our site may also display a review you made public on a service such as StartPlaying, or a summary with the displayed name and source, where permitted. We use relevant records to investigate fraud or security incidents, enforce agreements, establish or defend legal claims, and comply with law.

2. Payments, games, and private information

Sign-in options. When available, we use Clerk to handle player sign-in by email code, Google, or Discord. If you choose a connected account, its provider sends the identity information needed to sign you in. Our site does not ask you to give us your password for these providers. Clerk Privacy Policy

Card details. When we offer direct checkout, a payment processor such as Stripe collects the full card number and security code through its checkout or payment fields. Our systems receive the payment records described above and do not store full card numbers or card security codes. If you choose to save a payment method, the processor can keep it and provide us a reference to charge it when you have authorized future payments. A purchase on an outside booking platform follows that platform's payment and privacy policies. We may receive information needed to host or support the booking. Stripe Privacy Policy

Gameplay and community spaces. Other participants may see the screen name, voice or video you choose to transmit, character material, or messages you share with the table. We may retain notes or reports needed to run the campaign or respond to misconduct. A public review or post and its displayed name can be seen and copied by other visitors. Discord, your virtual tabletop, and other outside tools have their own settings and policies for material handled on their services.

Recording and transcription. Private sessions are unrecorded by default. If we arrange a recording, stream, or transcript, we will explain what will be captured, who can access it, the planned use, and how long we intend to keep it. We obtain separate consent from everyone affected before recording starts, including consent for public or promotional use when proposed. We do not use private game activity to train AI models or use your voice or face to identify you through biometrics.

Private table preferences. Share what helps you participate and the boundaries you want us to observe. Keep medical diagnoses, treatment information, and the personal reasons for a boundary out of routine forms and public channels. We limit access to private responses to the people who need them to run or safeguard the table and the providers that support the form. We may communicate table-wide boundaries without identifying who requested them. If an offering needs to collect consumer health data, we will provide any separate notice and obtain any permissions required by law before that collection or sharing.

3. Cookies, analytics, and messages

Our site and its providers may use cookies or similar storage to keep you signed in, secure a session, and remember settings you choose. If we use optional analytics, we use them to understand how people use the site and where it needs improvement, such as which pages are visited or where errors occur. We provide choices and obtain consent for optional technologies where required. Your browser can block or delete cookies. Blocking essential cookies may prevent sign-in or booking.

We do not sell personal information or share it for cross-context behavioral advertising. We process legally recognized privacy choices where they apply. You can unsubscribe from promotional emails using the link we provide or by contacting us. We may still send messages needed for your account or games, including confirmations, reminders, changes, receipts, and security notices.

4. Who can receive information

- Hosts and authorized helpers get what they need to manage their games, including roster names, seat status, contact details where needed, and relevant communications and table preferences. Other players see what you or the game shares with them. We keep reservation email addresses and billing details private.
- Service providers receive information needed to operate our Services, including hosting and database providers such as Cloudflare, sign-in services, payment processors, and providers that deliver our emails or help diagnose service issues. Providers you choose to use under your own account, including Discord, The Forge, and D&D Beyond, handle information they collect under their own policies.
- People or destinations you choose receive information you direct us to share or make public. That includes your display name and any review or post you choose to publish or a recording you separately agree to share.
- Authorities, advisers, and others involved in a dispute or safety response may receive information when required by law, or as appropriate to address fraud or a credible safety threat, handle a claim, or protect legal rights. This includes sharing information needed to respond to a payment dispute or to process a copyright notice.
- A successor or prospective buyer may receive information as part of evaluating or completing a transfer of the business, with appropriate safeguards and any notice or consent required by law.

5. Retention and security

We keep profile information while needed to manage your account. We keep booking and payment records as needed to run games, handle refunds and disputes, and meet tax, accounting, and legal requirements. We keep technical logs and communications as needed for troubleshooting and security, and keep moderation records as needed to address incidents and prevent repeat abuse. We consider the information's sensitivity, why we collected it, and any applicable retention or deletion requirements.

If you delete your player profile, we remove its profile details, saved character information and table-safety responses, end recurring seat reservations, and handle near-term seats under our Terms of Service. Signing in again may let you create a new profile. Your sign-in identity, posted reviews, near-term bookings, and transaction history may remain. Contact us to request deletion of other records. We may keep limited information as needed to reconcile a transaction, document a dispute, enforce a ban, or meet legal duties, subject to your rights. Backup copies may persist until the backups are replaced or deleted under applicable retention practices. Separate sign-in and gameplay providers control their own accounts and records.

We use access controls to limit who can view player information and security records to help identify misuse. No system can guarantee absolute security. Contact us if you suspect unauthorized access. We will notify affected people and authorities of a breach where required by law.

6. Your privacy choices and rights

You can use available profile controls to update or delete your profile. Email Stegilsaurus@gmail.com to request access, correction, deletion, or a copy of your personal information. Depending on the law that applies to you, you may also be able to object to or restrict certain uses, withdraw consent, opt out of certain processing, or appeal a decision on your request. If we rely on consent, withdrawing it affects future processing. You may contact your privacy regulator where that option is available.

We may verify your identity using information connected to your account or request reasonable proof of an agent's authority. We use verification information to process your request and respond within the time required by applicable law. If an appeal is available, you can use the same contact to request it. We respect your right to exercise applicable privacy choices without unlawful discrimination.

7. Children

Our standard booking and gaming Services are for adults age 18 and older. They are not directed to children, and we do not knowingly collect personal information online from children under 13 through those Services. If you believe a minor has provided information to us, contact Stegilsaurus@gmail.com. We will review the report and remove the information as required by law. Any separately offered youth program will explain its privacy practices and consent requirements before enrollment.

8. International users

We operate from the United States. Information may be processed in the United States and in other countries where our providers operate. Where required, we use lawful safeguards for international transfers and will provide information about them on request.

Where European or United Kingdom data protection law applies, we use information to perform our agreement or take steps you request before booking, to pursue legitimate interests such as security and moderation where your rights do not override them, to comply with legal obligations, or with consent for optional uses as appropriate. You may contact us for information about the basis for a particular use or complain to your local data protection authority.

9. Changes and contact

We will update the effective date when this policy changes and give prominent or direct notice of material changes as required by law. Where a new use requires consent, we will ask before the new use begins. Email Stegilsaurus@gmail.com with questions about this policy, questions about a provider, or privacy requests.